

Course Title	MANAGEMENT INFORMATION SYSTEMS
Course Code	CSC 300
Course Purpose and Objectives	The purpose of this course is to provide knowledge on the value of information systems as applied. Students will comprehend the management of information technology and resources in organizations and the issues involved in the analysis, design and operation of management information systems in them. In addition, the course will demonstrate the potential strategic value of information technology and resources in organizations.
Learning Outcomes	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Evaluate the foundation of systems and their strategic role in an organisation. 2. Describe the hardware, software, data storage, and telecommunication technologies that compromise the organization's information technology infrastructure. 3. Adapt new information technology systems. 4. Discuss the role of information systems in enhancing management decision making. 5. Critically evaluate special management challenges and opportunities created by the power of contemporary information systems and their global connection.
Course Content	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Management information systems: business driven mis • Decisions and processes • E-business value • Ethics and information security • Infrastructures • Business intelligence • Mobile business • Enterprise applications • Enterprise applications • Enterprise applications • Systems development and project management • Systems development and project management • Systems development and project management